EVILS OF WATER-DRINKING .- Sir Henry victim wonders why he or she feels so much for food or else grows ravenous, feels yous, depressed, and incapable of active duty. The unknown and unsuspected repher eyes, and was thus rescued from being buried alive. I heard the story not only from her own lips, but from those of her father and mother, and have not the slightest doubt of its trath. Numbers of similar cases are reported in medical journals. If the mere swallowing of indigestible food will almost deprive a dyspeptic of the use of his limbs and brain, how much living routile in the stomach more must a living reptile in the stomach paralyze and suspend the functions of the human body?—Hall's Journal of Health.

A TEMPLE OF SERPENTS .- The small town Steam Flooring & Planing Mill of Words, in the kingdom of Dahomey, is building in which the priests keep upward 1000 and WINDOW FRAMES, MOLDINGS, &c. of 1,000 serpents of all sexes, which they feed with the frogs and birds brought to them as offerings by the natives. These may be seen hanging from the beams across the ceiling with their heads hanging down ward, and in all sorts of strange contortions. The priests make the small serpents go through various evolutions by lightly touch which are big enough to enfold a bullock in their coils. It often happens that some o hese serpents make their way out of the temple into the town, and the priests have the greatest difficulty in coaxing them back. To kill a serpent intentionally is a crime punished with death; and if a European were to kill one the authority of the King himself would scarcely suffice to save his life. Any one killing a serpent unintentionally must in-form the priest of what has occurred, and go through the course of purification which takes place once a year.—St. James Gazette.

> A BEAVER'S INSTINCT .- An old bunter living in the Crazy mountains caught a young beaver soon after its birth and carried it to his cabin, where he gradually made a great pet of it. As the youngster approached maturity he got to building dams, and each morning the hunter found his cabin floor divided by a dam that reached from wall to wall, the component parts of which were firewood, boots, articles of clothing and other movable articles in the house that could be reached or transported. To add to the confusion, a basin or bucket of water, if possible, was capsized and flooded over the floor. This little animal. who had never seen a stream or a dam to know either, was busily at work engaged in doing what his forefathers had done a thousand years before him .- San Francisco

Thompson, the great English teetotaler physician, who refuses to treat any one in illness who drinks alcoholic beverages, says, nevertheless, that the only water which is perfectly safe to drink, unless it has been boiled or filtered, is natural mineral water. In the shape of a wriggling worm, invisible to the eye, even when held to the light, and only to be detected by the microscope, a water-drinker may have given more permanent ledging to a snake than ever the hos-pitable whale gave to Jonab. But an ani-malcule will grow and thrive on the inside of the indiscriminate water-drinker who has swallowed it until it feeds upon his vitals and exhausts his health and strength. The discomfort in the stomach, loses all appetite tile stowaway, swallowed weeks or months before, in a glass of impure water, is the cause, and he who doubts the numerous cases on record of inantition, or suspension of life, and apparent death from this cause alone must be incapable of weighing evidence. I have myself known a young girl who died apparently and remained cold and lifeless until put in her coffin, when her mouth opened and a small snake, some few inches lang superged. A Franch doctor. inches long, appeared. A French doctor, who had attended to the case, was fortunately present, and drew the reptile out with his fingers. After a brief interval, the ex-hausted girl began to shudder, then opened
